

DATA SUPPLEMENT TO DOC SCIENCE
INTERNAL SERIES 155

Autopsy report for individual seabirds killed and returned from New Zealand fisheries, 1 October 2001 to 30 September 2002

There were 689 specimens returned from 45 separate fishing trips with on-board observers, between 1 October 2001 and 30 September 2002 (the 2001/02 fishing year) where birds were incidentally killed as a bycatch to various forms of fishing practice. This data supplement should be read in conjunction with the analyses and references contained within Robertson et al. (2004).

To ensure compatibility with previous autopsy programmes, the methods and definitions described by Bartle (2000) have been followed. The authors undertook all the autopsies and bird identifications. All birds or parts of birds returned this fishing year were identifiable to species and subspecies, with one exception. Nomenclature for the albatrosses follows Nunn et al. (1996), Robertson & Nunn (1998) and Croxall & Gales (1998). All birds were sexed by dissection, except where the specimen was severely damaged by sea lice or machinery. Full morphometric measurements were made for most specimens.

All specimens were allocated a unique autopsy number and the details of individual birds are presented in this supplement. The unique specimen autopsy number enables easy correlation of the data within the supplement. In some cases, where specimens were severely damaged, it was not possible to complete all parts of the report. In this case a blank or '?' in the supplement indicates a deficiency, while 'U' indicates unknown.

Autopsy identification and details are listed in the following 48 pages by vessel type, for birds killed and returned from observed vessels, over the period from 1 October 2001 to 30 September 2002.
