

Hey kids!

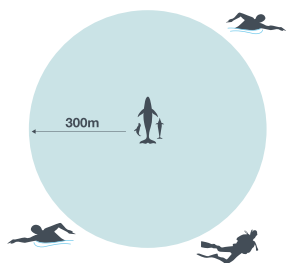

Show mum and dad this diagram!
It will help them keep marine mammals safe when you are boating this summer!

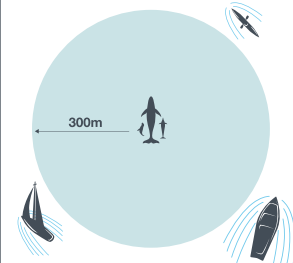

300m = 3 rugby fields

No one in the water within 300m

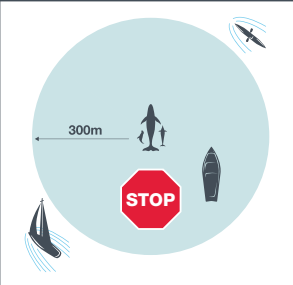

No approaching within 300m

Marine Mammal Safe Zones
5 Knots at all times

If 300m is breached STOP AND STAY STOPPED until marine mammals are 300m away

Marine mammal maze!

It's busy out there on the bay today! With so many boats around, it's easy for young marine mammals to be separated from their pod. Help this calf through the boating maze and back to their mum.

Help!

I can't find my mum - there are too many boats in the way! Can you help me get to her?

There are about 26 bottlenose dolphins visiting in the Bay of Islands

They stick quite close to the shore where they love to eat fish and squid. Babies (called calves) are born in spring and summer. They feed on mainly milk from their mothers for two to three years and stay close to mum until they are 6 six years old.

Bottlenose dolphins travel in groups called pods and talk to each other by squeaking and whistling. They can hold their breath for two or three minutes before coming up to the surface to breathe.

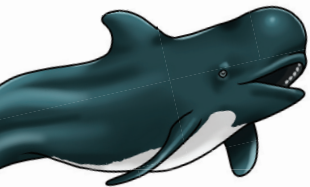

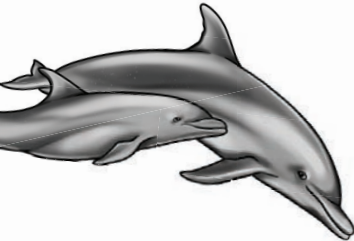

There are also around 33 other species of marine mammals who visit the bay, to feed, nurse and play. The Bay of Islands provides a diverse range of ecosystems for these marine mammals, and we can help make it safer for them.

One of the major threats to marine mammals is US!

Too many boats near marine mammals can stop them resting and feeding. It can be stressful for them - especially for mums looking after their young. We can help keep marine mammals safe by scanning for fins, staying away and when boating stopping.

And YOU can help by telling your family how they can help!

Whale Word Muddle

Marine mammals are not fish - they breathe air! But instead of breathing through their mouth, they use their blow-hole! This whale's breath has jumbled out words! Can you rearrange the letters into proper words?

Be sure not to swim in marine mammals home - get out of the water if you see them!
